Dunkerton Raider Football

by Coach Rigdon

As summer is in full effect it has become time to increase the preparation for the upcoming football season. This summer is full of daily BFS weightlifting workouts, Dunkerton camps, team building activities, elementary clinics, speed & agility training, college camps, home 5 on 5 passing sessions and a 5 on 5 passing camp and league at Wartburg College.

The high school program has been placed in a new district for the 2012 football season and will be playing in District 3. This district will prove to be one of the strongest districts in 8 man football for the state of Iowa this season. District 3 includes Dunkerton, Don Bosco, Clarksville, Janesville, Rockford, Tripoli, Northwood-Kensett & Riceville. Our two non-district opponents include Central City and Midland. We return 11 varsity letter winners and 4 district honor recipients from the 2011 season and looks to be an explosive very competitive upcoming season for the Raiders. A couple of highlights you will see this upcoming season: We will open the season in the uni-dome vs. Central City and will have a new look with new home and away jerseys and a different style of decals for our helmets. We thank all that helped with donations and the work it took to provide our program with these changes. We are also very excited to continue to see the growth that we have with the junior high program and the 5th and 6th grade padded program that the Youth Sports foundation provides. Along with all of this we are very happy to see that this year will include a 3rd and 4th grade version of this for the first time at Dunkerton. If any current 3rd thru 6th graders are interested in taking part with these teams please contact Thatcher Block @ 319 -269-5285 as the deadline is July 25th. Should be a very exciting year for the complete Dunkerton Football program. Below you will see a complete schedule for this summer and season.

Handheld Electronics Recycling Drive

Waterloo, Iowa – June 12, 2012 –Did you know that there are over 250 million cell phone users (85% of the population) in the U.S. alone, with nearly one billion cell phones currently in retirement? It has been estimated that less than 10% of unwanted cell phones are recycled each year.

The Wheaton Franciscan Healthcare Green Team will be holding a handheld electronic recycling drive from June 18-29, 2012 at several convenient drop off sites. Please plan on helping the Green Team with this environmentally friendly initiative and to reach their goal of collecting 1000 devices by dropping off old cell phones, MP3 players, handheld games, e-readers, and other handheld electronics to be recycled. Handheld electronics may be dropped off at sites at the following locations; Covenant Medical Center, Sartori Memorial Hospital, Mercy Hospital in Oelwein, and all Covenant Clinic locations.

Due to their small size and rapid replacement cycle, cell phones and other electronics are more likely to end up in the waste stream and contribute to a growing portion of the toxic materials in landfills. Handheld electronics and their accessories contain a large number of hazardous substances known as Persistent, Bioaccumulative and Toxic Chemicals (PBTs). Included in the list of PBTs are metals that can linger in the environment for many years and have adverse effects on human health. A number of these chemicals have been known to cause cancer, as well as damage to the nervous and reproductive systems, developmental problems and other genetic impacts

Will You Lose Your Internet Connection on July 9?

They're calling it "Doomsday" and, for some, it will be on July 9, when hundreds of thousands of victims face the possibility of being unable to connect to the Internet.

Ironically, that's because of a decision by the FBI to switch off a special program that has been keeping more than half a million infected PCs online since last year. Victims likely don't know their machine has been infected and, if they don't check, come July 9 the Internet will just plain disappear for them.

Their computers are infected with a piece of malware known as "DNSChanger" that connected them to servers running a now-defunct online advertising scam.

These servers were in turn connected to the Internet, so victims wouldn't necessarily realize what happened, apart from their PCs maybe slowing down a little.

The malware also disabled virus-checker updates so even people who had Internet security software couldn't detect it. Then, when users tried to access certain websites or run a search, they were directed to bogus web pages full of ads, which netted the crooks an estimated $14 million.

We don't need to go into the technical details of how this was done, but when police seized the scammers' computers they were left with a problem — those half million victims were now reliant on them to connect to the Internet.

So the FBI replaced them with "clean" machines that would keep the Internet link open — without the scam running.

Victim computers, of course, still have the virus but without anything nasty happening.

But when the FBI switches off its servers, those machines will lose their online connection and won't know where to find the Internet!

Are you one of the victims?

Fortunately, there's a relatively easy way to check and to put things right thanks to a website that can detect infected machines and provide instructions on how to set things right again.

Simply go to <http://clicks.aweber.com/y/ct/?l=OtAeW&m=JKfg1H6IgGtWfo&b=PQ57aTAS-MJlWjuuvKXGVxw-†-> and you will either get a green (for "clear") or red (for "infected") page.

The check does not download any software onto your PC. Nor does it run a scan. It just checks where your computer is looking for the Internet.

If you're in the clear, that's all you need do.

If it says your computer is infected, go to <http://clicks.aweber.com/y/ct/?l=OtAeW&m=JKfg1H6IgGtWfo&b=O6q1sgm-bcrXVvzssQOBjBg> for free removal tools and more information on what to do next.

If you don't want to click directly on any of these links, key in and go to dcwg.org, a site specially set up by the FBI and Internet security specialists to deal with this online advertising scam.

Good luck!

pinpoint great share-buying opportunities. Of course, genuine advisers and even some investors do use computer programs to support their investment strategy but in the scam version, crooks either don't have the software or, if they do, it turns out to be useless.

Even worse, in a recent incident, two British brothers were alleged to have duped 75,000 American investors into subscribing to their robot service (nicknamed "Marl") that was also being used for a "pump and dump" scheme.

Not only were they charging a subscription for their non-existent robot but they also were allegedly accepting payments to promote particular stocks, pushing up prices (pumping) so the perpetrators could then sell (dump) their own holdings for a fat profit.

Federal regulators have recently filed a civil suit against the pair, claiming they took in $1.2 million in subscriptions over four years, and racked up a further $1.9 million from stock promoters.

Just remember, if a program could really make accurate predictions, why would we need advisers? Everyone would be making a fortune.

That's technically impossible! For every stock market winner, there has to be a loser.

For more on pump and dump schemes see our earlier report: SEE SCAMS/Page 5 date. Articles can be written directly in the email or in a doc or txt document and attached. I can open and read both txt and doc files. Because I work on a Mac, I cannot always open other file types. For instance, cannot open publisher files or wps files.

When typing up your article, remember it's one space after a period, not two as some of us were taught in typing class. Computers have the ability to use non monospaced fonts (unlike typewriters) and don't need a double space after a period.

Spellcheck is your friend, but you cannot trust it completely. It doesn't know whether you mean there, their or they're.

Do not double space, and do not hit enter or return at the end of a line unless you are starting a new paragraph.

What is acceptable? If you are selling something and write an article about your product, I will assume you want a paid ad. Acceptable articles would be about activities that are going on in our community that would be of interest to the community.

Photos: Photos from the internet generally do not print well. I prefer to see a photo with at least 150 dpi, and preferably 300 if I need to enlarge them. 72 dpi photos look great on screen but don't print well. If you have a choice, always send a larger file.

Does that mean I won't accept articles if they don't follow these tips?

Not at all. These tips are just that, tips that make it easier to get your information into the paper.

 Here Comes Sir Spamalot!
 Finally, in the never-ending battle to defeat spammers calling and messaging your cell phone, we recently came across an interesting article on the TidBITS news site for Apple users.
 Blogger Glenn Fleishman explains two interesting techniques for handling incoming spam.

 For voice calls, he suggests setting up a bogus contact (who he calls “Sir Spamalot”) for which you store the numbers of the incoming calls.
 Since many spammers use the same set of numbers, your phone software will recognize the call and you can simply ignore it or send it to voicemail.
 You can also use this for text messages, but should additionally report the spam to your phone service provider so that it is blocked in future.

Fleishmann explains how to do this on an iPhone using the ATT network, though he says other service providers probably operate the same way.
 Check out his article at <http://clicks.aweber.com/y/ct/?l=OtAeW&m=JKfg1H6Ig-GtWfo&b=DqHsOIU0VaPoO2BREqhwSQ>.
 We also wrote about the wider issue of cellphone spam in an earlier report.

If you are using a pressure canner for your home canning, it is important to have the dial gauge checked each season before you begin using it. Canner lids will be tested at the workshop; all that is needed is the lid and dial gauge. Weighted gauges remain accurate and do not need to be tested. Low acid vegetables need to be pressure canned. Vegetables such as green beans canned at home require pressure canning. Beans canned in a boiling water canner are not safe. They may look fine coming out of the canner, but may turn cloudy and jars may pop open, even sometimes with force.

ISU Extension publications are available at www.extension.iastate.edu/store Please be safe when canning foods for you and your family! Knowledge and recommendations change over time with scientific developments. You should use up-to-date recommendations and methods and not just rely on practices of past generations.

To register for the Home Food Preservation workshop call the Black Hawk County Extension office at 319-234-6811.
