Authorities Ask for Information Regarding the Disappearance of Lyric and Elizabeth and Seven Bridges

Evansdale News On Tuesday, February 3, 2015, local police held a conference regarding the disappearance of Elizabeth Collins and Lyric Cook. Evansdale Police and Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation officials spent two days at the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children headquarters, for a case review with experts from across the country.

Based on that discussion, local authorities have decided to focus on the importance of the Seven Bridges Wildlife Area in Bremer County. If you have any information regarding this area, or know someone who is familiar with the area and was acting suspicious in July of 2012, authorities are asking you to call the Evansdale Police tipline number listed below.

If you have any information about the disappearance of Lyric and Elizabeth, or Seven Bridges Wildlife Area, call the tip line at 319-232-6682 pening to your account, by monitoring online and paper statements. This is especially important if you receive a notification that your personal information may have been stolen in a hack attack.

There are also tools, books and software packages, that provide additional actions you can take to foil identify theft attempts and to alert you to any possible breaches or fraudulent use of your personal information.

Remember too to get your free annual credit report from each of the Big Three credit bureaus.

5. Get help. Increasingly, individuals are turning to monitoring and safeguarding services that employ all the latest security techniques that can stop identity thieves in their tracks, identify attempts to use your ID, or help with the laborious corrective process if you're already a victim. Many credit card companies and banks offer this sort of service but we don't recommend them because they're costly and often not comprehensive enough in their scope. Instead, consider a specialist service. There are many of these, offering a range of services for monthly subscription rates. The good ones include monitoring your status and credit applications with the Big Three bureaus, use of your credit cards, Social Security number and driver's license, address changes, public records, and bank account activity. Many of them also offer insurance in some form of guarantee against theft and a few of them even come with their own Internet security software.

What We Do

Subscribers often ask us what we use personally for our identity theft protection. The answer is that we follow all five of these keys. For monitoring, our co-founders Audri and Jim Lanford use LifeLock for themselves and their families.

"Although the $1 million guarantee is great, it's not the biggest benefit. The real value is how LifeLock will save you hundreds of hours by helping you straighten everything out if your identity is stolen; that is much more valuable than the guarantee," says Audri. "They did a great job when we thought a family member's identity had been stolen."

Like most of the reputable companies in this category, LifeLock makes a monthly charge for its services. Scambusters subscribers can get a free month when they use the free link and code listed below.

If you've been sitting on the sidelines wondering if you should be doing more for identity theft protection, now is the time to act: it's no longer a case of "if" but "when."

Scambusters: Identity Theft Protection

There was a time, not too long ago either, when identify theft seemed a distant threat and identity theft protection was something you heard about but probably thought you didn't need. Those days are gone thanks to increasingly sophisticated phishing and theft techniques, as well as hacking of customer databases at major retailers, banks, etc.

For instance, in the past two years alone, one of our Scambusters Team members has received seven notifications of hacks against retailers and others that included her personal data! "So far," she says, "there's been no identity theft, but we're vigilant and well protected."

Latest estimates suggest the personal information of more than 13 million Americans ends up in the hands of criminals every year, and every two seconds another person falls victim. The crime takes on many guises but the most common forms are claiming benefits and tax refunds using forged documents, the use of stolen credit and debit card numbers for fraudulent purchases, and taking out loans and other forms of credit in a victim's name. And it's not just the financial cost that victims suffer but also the sheer pain of trying to put things right. In a worst case, it can take years to sort out.

So, what can, and should, you be doing to protect yourself? And are there useful tools that can ease some of the burden of constant monitoring? The answer is a definite "Yes!"

In fact if you do all of the things we've listed below, you could substantially reduce the risk of falling victim, though, of course, you can never completely eliminate that risk.

Here are what we consider the five keys to identity theft protection.

1. Get educated. There are stacks of free resources available online to keep yourself up to date about current risks.

There's Scambusters, of course. We regularly publish on the subject to supplement our Identity Theft Information Center. See our website listed below.

You can also sign up for alerts and get more information from the Federal Trade Commission (FTC). The Commission has a useful guide on what to do if you discover your personal information may have been compromised. (See website listed below).

Similarly, the IRS also offers help and advice, which is particularly important in what is turning out to be another busy year for identity-related tax fraud. (See website)

If you're a savvy computer user and really interested, you could also set up a Google news alert based on the phrase "identity theft" and Google will send you a list of key stories every day containing the phrase.

2. Be cautious. Any time you use your card, online or off, sign on to your web accounts or give information about yourself, including your Social Security number, think about who you're giving it to. Do you know this individual or company? Are you sure they are who they say they are? Are you on a secure Internet page that uses "https" in the address?

When you insert a card into an ATM, check if the machine seems to have been tampered with.

3. Be secure. Use and regularly update security software on your PC. In most cases, this will stop attempts to steal confidential information stored on your hard drive. It may also alert you if you're visiting a suspicious website.

Also, don't carry your Social Security or Medicare cards or additional, unnecessary payment cards around with you.

4. Be vigilant. Like our Scambusters Team member, keep a very close eye on what's hap-

Ninth St., Waterloo; the Sartori Health Care Foundation Office, 515 College St., Cedar Falls; or area school counselors' offices. The deadline is March 13.

This is an "Open Letter" to those attending, those who have attended, and to those who will attend "The Countryside Vineyard Church" in the future. I am writing to inform you of a change in our Celebration Service times, and to advise of the reason for this change.

In our 11 years of following Jesus Christ in service to our community here in Evansdale and her surrounding communities, we have longed for a single service to inspire and promote unity of fellowship. However, having such a large children's ministry and therefore the need for so many volunteers much of this responsibility fell on our leadership. That format required two Celebration times in order that those serving would be able to hear the message of God's Word prior to them serving. All of that to say we believe we have a formula for one Celebration Service time and this is the announcement of that time change.

Many may wonder or determine this to be a step backwards. Contrary to that thought we feel this to be a huge step forward. It has always been our passion and our heart to be a unified body of believers that enjoy the blessing of intimate worship, conversational teaching and heartfelt fellowship in one accord. If that's your heart please join us.

That said: Effective March 8th we will celebrate together at 10am. This will be a time of Celebration for the entire family. Kid Zone and Adult bible study will begin at 11:15 and conclude at noon. Traditionally we have had potlucks on the first Sunday of every month. This will continue and start at noon...

Thank you for your flexibility as we continue to draw near to God together as one body - "...mutually encouraged by one another's faith" (Romans 1:12)

Pastor Bill Van Wey 319-433-1368

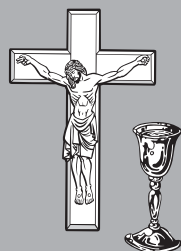

Lent leads to Easter Good Friday and Easter lead to the Altar

It is right that you should give thanks to the Lord in worship. To not attend worship where the Lord locates Himself is pure foolishness! Even the demons know who the Lord is. When the King offers His festival in His word and sacrament the expectation is that you attend. Yet if not the Lord does not force anyone to come, but is that wise?

During the season of Lent Jesus marches toward the cross. This is the sacrifice of salvation! When death is present in Jesus, eternal life is present in His resurrection. Jesus overcomes the biblical death of eternal damnation sin deserves. On Sunday, the day of resurrection, the Lord offers His Word of promise from the pulpit and from His altar for you. In other words, He locates Himself for you in the church on Sunday morning. Please come!

The Lord is merciful
